

Why Do We Worry?

Let's take a closer look:

Wow, that was fun! Tomas learned a lot in his lesson today. Let's break it down:

- Worry has been around for millions of years!
 - Humans have always worried – even cavemen.
 - Worry is a form of protection. Worry keeps you alert and allows you to react quickly to danger!
 - A little worry is a good thing. A little worry can protect you from touching a hot stove, for example.
- There are old and new parts of the brain which play different roles.

- In the older part of your brain is the worry command center.
- In the newer part of your brain is the logical thinking center.
- Every time you have a thought, it goes into your worry AND thinking centers.
- Til and Widdle represent the newer and older parts of your brain.
 - Soon you will meet Til the Thinker. Til lives inside the newer thinking center.
 - You will also meet Widdle the Worrier. Widdle lives inside the older worry center.

Tomas learned that everyone worries and that it's okay to worry, but sometimes Widdle the worrier can get a little overactive. Sometimes Widdle thinks you're in danger when you're really just fine. We'll learn more about Til and Widdle next.

Questions to think about:

1. Why is worry a good thing?
2. How long has worry been around?
3. What do the older and newer parts of the brain do?

This is just the start of Tomas's journey to learn all about worry. Join Tomas, Nelly, and their teacher Mr. Diddlydoo as they explore different types of worries and healthy ways to manage anxiety.

Over 6 modules, you'll get to know a colorful group of unique and funny characters, each dealing with their own set of worries, everyday challenges, and stressful moments.

By the end of this program, your kids will have gained a better understanding of what makes us fall into a sea of worry. They will also learn how to control their anxious thoughts using a set of skills you and your child can rely on at any time.

GoZen! is just one of 8 animated programs that teach essential life skills in a format kids love.
